Short bio:

Originally from Guatemala, I graduated Cum Laude from Universidad Francisco Marroquin. Had the opportunity to work for 2 years in cancer prevention and participated in the tobacco control leadership program of the Bloomberg School of Public health. I worked closely with the team that instituted a ban on smoking in bars and restaurants in Guatemala.

Just recently finished my Advanced Endoscopy fellowship in Mayo Clinic, Florida and will start working soon in Presbyterian Healthcare services in New Mexico. I sit at the International Relations Committee of the American College of Gastroenterology and recently joined the Council for Young Physicians from the National Hispanic Medical Association. When I have free time I am studying a Master's in public health with Kings College London.

My areas of interest are cancer epidemiology and prevention, digestive health in Hispanics, cancer in Hispanics, and health economics. I enjoy soccer, surfing, and running. Have completed two marathons and started training for the third one.
