

Emma B. Olivera, MD, FAAP

Pediatrician
Advocate Children's Medical Group

Assistant Clinical Professor
University of Illinois

Dr. Emma B. Olivera, is a dedicated general pediatrician with a strong commitment to health equity for all children. She completed her medical education at the University of Illinois College of Medicine, followed by a pediatric residency at Children's Hospital of Michigan. Currently serving at Advocate Children's Medical Group in the suburbs of Chicago, Dr. Olivera is also an Assistant Clinical Professor at the University of Illinois, where she contributes to the academic growth of future healthcare professionals. Recognized as a Castle Connolly Top Doctor, she is a trusted voice in national public health campaigns and is actively involved in pediatric care, academic mentorship and public health advocacy, particularly within the Latino community.

Carlos O'Bryan MD, FAAFP

Medical Director
Academic Family Medicine Center and Urgent Care

Dr. O'Bryan-Becerra is the medical director of the Academic Family Medicine Center and part of the core faculty at the Ventura County Medical Center Family Medicine residency program. His areas of focus include maternal-child health, caring for migrant farmworkers and their families, Medical Spanish, and vaccine science. He is a graduate of the AAFP Vaccine Science Fellowship and has worked on educational materials to improve COVID-19 vaccine rates for children as well as on RSV vaccines. His current research involves quality improvement projects on HPV vaccine uptake and promoting vaccine equity.

Luis Isea MD, FACP

Assistant Program Director & Internal
Medicine Residency Program
AdventHealth Orlando

Dr. Isea is an academic Internal Medicine Physician, currently serving as Assistant Program Director of the Internal Medicine Residency Program at AdventHealth Orlando. He completed medical school in Caracas, Venezuela, then immigrated to the US in 2015 to pursue his IM residency training in AdventHealth Orlando. He is actively involved in advocacy and physician well-being, taking leadership roles in the ACP and NHMA. He is passionate about increasing awareness of health inequities affecting underrepresented minorities and advocating to increase fair IMG representation and diversity in the physician workforce. He enjoys building Lego sets.

Arturo Vargas Bustamante, PhD

Professor
UCLA's Fielding School of Public Health

Faculty Research Director
*UCLA Latino Policy and Politics Institute
(LPPI)*

Dr. Arturo Vargas Bustamante is a Professor at UCLA's Fielding School of Public Health and Faculty Research Director at the UCLA Latino Policy and Politics Institute (LPPI). His research focuses on health care access and utilization, particularly among Latinos/Hispanics and U.S. immigrants. His work, published in leading health policy journals, addresses health care disparities, policy, and program evaluation. At LPPI, he oversees the Institute's research agenda and leads collaborations with policymakers, community organizations, and scholars to inform evidence-based policies. His research has received support from major public and private funders, shaping health policy research and practice.