

Dr. Trinidad Solis

Dr. Trinidad Solis is the Deputy Health Officer for the Fresno County Department of Public Health. Her duties include serving as a medical consultant to various health programs within the department. She also assists with coordinating the department's efforts to protect farmworkers from COVID-19 by making COVID-19 tests and vaccines available to farmworkers at their agricultural workplaces. Dr. Solis is the proud daughter of Mexican immigrant farmworkers with roots in the San Joaquin Valley of California.

She previously worked as a family medicine physician in Los Angeles for several years, where she treated a diverse patient population. She was a Health Sciences Assistant Clinical Professor with the UCLA family medicine department and taught UCLA medical students during their family medicine clinical rotation. She enjoys speaking with students about the intersection of public health and primary care.

Dr. Solis received her undergraduate degree from Stanford University. She earned her medical degree from UCSF's School of Medicine. She completed her family medicine residency at UCLA Medical Center and obtained her master of public health degree from Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. B. Cameron Webb

Dr. Cameron Webb currently serves as Senior Advisor to the White House COVID-19 Response, where he leads the Administration's efforts to ensure an equitable response for all communities. Prior to his appointment, Dr. Webb was an Assistant Professor of Medicine and Public Health Sciences, and Director of Health Policy and Equity at the University of Virginia School of Medicine. A general internist, Dr. Webb continues to work clinically as a hospitalist, including working in the University's COVID unit throughout the pandemic. He was the founding director of UVA's Health Equity, Law and Policy Research (HELPR) Laboratory and a core faculty member at the University's Equity Center, an initiative for the redress of inequity through community-engaged scholarship. Previously, Dr. Webb spent a year as a 2016 White House Fellow in the Obama-Biden administration's Office of Cabinet Affairs, where he served on the My Brother's Keeper task force and the White House Healthcare team. A born and raised Virginian, Dr. Webb received his B.A. from the University of Virginia, M.D. from Wake Forest School of Medicine, and J.D. from Loyola University Chicago School of Law.
